

Making California's Transportation System More Intelligent

Joint Informational Hearing Senate Transportation and Housing Committee and Assembly Transportation Committee

November 16, 2011, 1:00 PM – 4 PM
City Council Chambers
Long Beach, California

AGENDA

I. Introduction and Welcome

II. What Are Intelligent Transportation Systems (ITS) and Why Are They Important?

- Richard Backlund, Associate Division Administrator, Southern California Office, Federal Highway Administration
- Paul Sorensen, Associate Director of the Transportation, Space and Technology Program, RAND

III. California's Existing Use of ITS Technology

State

- Robert Copp, State Traffic Engineer, California Department of Transportation

Regional

- Doug Failing, Executive Director of the Highway Program, Los Angeles County Metropolitan Transportation Authority
- Jerry Wood, Engineering Consultant for Gateway Cities COG
- Mark Jensen, Cambridge Systematics for Gateway Cities COG
- Matt Carpenter, Director of Transportation Services, Sacramento Area COG

IV. The Future of Intelligent Transportation Systems

- Alan Clelland, Chair of Intelligent Transportation Society – California
- Thomas West, Co-Director of Program for Advanced Transportation Technology (PATH), Institute of Transportation Studies, UC Berkeley
- Roberto Horowitz, Co-Director of PATH, UC Berkeley

V. Public Comment